There has been passed by the general assembly an act which extends the privilege to sub-registrars of vital statistics of a town so that removal permits concerning deceased persons can be issued by them. It was through the influence of William H. Allen of Henry Allen & Son that this matter was taken up and presented to the legistature, and since the matter has been before the general assembly he has made a number of visits to the capital in its behalf, which have resulted successfully.

The new act, which goes into effect the first of November, is applicable in any town, but it is of much benefit to all concerned as regards the situation in the town of Preston. Up to this time, the sub-registrar could issue burlal permits, but not removal permits, so that in case of a death at the Norwich State hospital, the institution being just over the Preston town line, it is necessary for the undertaker to go from the hospital to the town clerk's office with the death certificate and secure from the town clerk the removal permit which allows the

OF HER RESIDENCE Idea of Mrs. A. C. Tyler of the Pequat

Mrs. A. C. Tyler, widow of Colonel Tyler, contemplates converting The Elms, her Pequot avenue mansion, in New London, into an inn. Mrs. Tyler has considered the matter for some time and recently announced to friends her intention of doing so next—ar. The Elms is one of the show places of the Pequot. It is the largest house in the colony and has extensive grounds. The property extends to the waterfront and includes the land on which the station of the New York Yachi club is located. The police did an excellent job in running down the case. After the stolen goods had been secured the task was to tell where the belting came from. For a long time no one admitted losing the property. Acting Chief Acting Chief Linton had his men look the city over thoroughly, and it was finally found that the belting and a quantity of other goods to the value of $200 had been taken from the former refrogerating plant at Thamesville. The property was owned by H. H. Gaffey of New London, who came here and said the belt was his property.

London, who came here and said the belt was his property.

Royston maintained that he did not steal it, but that another man whom he didn't know gave it to him. The police deserve much credit for locating the missing goods and the man before the owner knew the property was gone. Sergeant Connell and Policeman Henderson did much good work in the case.

Felt since the burning of the Pequot house.

Mrs. Tyler's plan for making an inn of her residence is due to the fact that The Elms is a far bigger house than she needs. Her household now practically consists simply of herself and daughter.

parents on Talman street.

Miss Wilbur, who has recently moved into the district, has taught in the school more than 25 years, having completed her 25th year last January. She is beloved by all her pupils, past and present, and the people of the district hope that she will continue long in the service of good to which her life has been given.

Miss Donovan comes to fill the position for so long so well filled by Miss Mary L. Brunelle, who has resigned to take up other work. Miss Donovan was secured from the Occum school, and the local committee is well pleased to be able to get her. She taught under Principal Irvin C. self fortunate to be able to secure her services again. She is a resident of Greeneville.

Miss Sullivan starts her second year at the Bridgs school this fall, much to the gratification of the district, as she proved herself so earnest and secured such good results in her work last year. Her home is with her parents on Hinckley streat.

Miss Plunkett, who will have charge of the senior room, has for the past three years had the Sixth and Seventh grades, has recommended herself to the school authorities because of her excellent discipline, her ability to impart knowledge, and the high grade of work done by her pupils.

This year the three upper grades will be seated in one room, with Miss Plunkett in charge. The work of these grades will be on the departmental plan, Miss Plunkett being assisted by Principal Elmer. Mr. Elmer will by the present plan be able to give much more time to supervision than heretofore. The regrading, which will be effective as soon as school opens on Wednesday, will reduce the school course from a very unwieldy one taking 11 years to finish to one more modern and needing only nine years from entering to graduating. Previously the work of the grades was not definitely assigned and ofter the work of one grade duplicated that of another. In so far as is possible this is being eliminated and dfinite courses of study assigned, insuring the greatest amount of efficiency with less waste study assigned, insuring the greates amount of efficiency with less waste energy. energy. The district has a good school and is backing up the school authorities in every possible way as they attempt improvements.

James Franklin and Chester Barnes have finished the work of erecting a stairway from the senior room to Mr. Elmer's recitation room. At present they are engaged in making the changes of seating necessary to the regrading and everything will be in grading, and everything will be in shape to start school on Wednesday, the 6th.

John Dewd, the Lebanon burglar who was caught red-handed in the store of E. R. Fowler last week, is getting along nicely at the jail. His hand was dressed by Dr. Cassidy on Wednesday, and shows steady improvement, although the two small fingers are in bad shape yet. Dowd is as mum as ever himself, though he has said that he has a family and a good home. He acts to the jail officials like an old-time criminal. He seems thoroughly at home in the jail and makes no attempt to break rules,
